THIEF WHO KEPT A DIARY

The police have just captured a notorious Vienna thief who specialized in stealing overcoats from restaurants. When they searched him they found a notebook in his pocket which was a careful record of all the things he had stolen. There, in black and white, were all the restaurants, inns, and cafes which he had visited. They were all nicely arranged in categories showing the class of people that frequented them.

The fine dining rooms of the inner city were in "Group No. 1," while those in the outskirts came very much lower in the scale. When he managed to steal a coat he wrote down "Siegl Hell." If unsuccessful,
No luck."

A.M.A. MAKES NEW APPEAL FOR COURTESY ON HIGHWAYS

An appeal for more courtesy on the highways has been sponsored by the Alberta Motor Association, which believes that some drivers may still go a long way in this respect.

Dealing with this problem at its annual meeting, the members of the A.M.A. passed a resolution instructing the directors to request operators of vehicle fleets to co-operate in having their drivers observe the rules of the highway and display proper courtesy to others on the highway.

Discussion indicated that some of the commercial lines have seen to it that there should be no further occasion for complaints against their truck drivers. Oil companies, for example, are known to have told their drivers to observe road courtesy.

As a result some trucks carry the sign, "Toot Your Horn and We Will Share the Road With You."

At the same time, motorists have complained over the fact that some trucks are not equipped with rear view mirrors. In some cases, too, of the motor car horns has been a futile endeavor, as the truck driver was unable to hear the appeal to share the road.

Efforts of the A.M.A. to bring about a greater degree of road courtesy have had beneficial results already, as it has been reported that some businesses have instructed their drivers to reduce their rate of speed and show courtesy to motorists on the highways.

WHO IS THE HEIR?

If for any reason George VI. were to vacate the throne of England before an Act of Succession were passed, it is doubtful whether any monarchy could ever again rule legally and constitutionally in Britain. Such is the opinion of recognized authorities on the situation arising out of the fact that the King and Queen of Great Britain have two daughters, and two daughters only.

In real estate, the elder of two daughters has no prior claim over the younger: the estate has to be equally divided. Where an inheritance is of such a nature that it cannot be divided, as, for example, the title of a barony capable of descending in the female as well as the male line, the title goes into abeyance. The case of the earldom of Cromartie, in 1893, indicates that the same rule holds for higher titles as well as for a barony.

On two occasions, it is true, the daughters of an English king have succeeded to the throne in the order of their age. But this affords no true parallel, for neither Mary and Elizabeth, daughters of Henry VIII., nor Mary and Anne, daughters of James II., came to the throne by virtue of hereditary right. They ruled in consequence of an Act of Parliament.

In all English history and English law, therefore, it is doubtful whether there is anything that suggests that the Princess Elizabeth, as the elder daughter of George VI., has a prior claim to the throne before her sister, Princess Margaret Rose. There is thus obvious need for a new Act of Succession, for without it the Crown would be held by a doubtful title, and if this were so, no valid act could be passed whereby this doubt could be removed.—Christian Science Monitor.

the hotel business at Kaslo, and after fourteen years there, spent some time returning to Nelson in 1916. He was a Dominion fruit inspector at that time, and was superannuated about three years ago, after twenty-three years of service. He is survived by his wife, two sons, Dr. Joseph Fletcher, of Vancouver, and Stewart Fletcher, of Calgary; and a daughter, Mrs. S. T. Alexander, of Kimberley;

NOW WHERE DO WE STAND?

There appears to have been something definitely slaphanded on the part of the government in the establishment of the Alberta Printers' Code, which has been declared to be non-operative by Magistrate A. H. Gibson, who presided over a case at Edmonton, in which one W. H. Heller, an Edmonton printer, was charged with selling printing below code rates.

"In my opinion," Magistrate Gibson said, "the order-in-council is not effective to bring the code into force

—that is, to give it the effect of law."

The magistrate's reason was that the order-in-council did not stipulate a date on which the code would become operative and did not follow the wording of the Trade and Industry

Act in its operative sections.

For years "respectable" printers have been fighting cut-throat competition, not only in Alberta, but in practically every locality in the Domestic. It was felt that a great measure of protection from such unfair competition was assured when the Alberta Printers' Code was supposedly made effective last October, but the first "test case" to come before a magistrate has apparently proved the invalidity of the new code.

According to the news item appearing in the Calgary Daily Herald

Tuesday evening, Hon. W. W. Cross, acting Minister of Trade and Industry, has stated that "The whole matter is receiving consideration." In the meantime, the majority of two hundred and fifty print shops in the province are left "up in the air."

Those who have complied with the regulations of the code as submitted, have paid license fees ranging from five dollars to fifty dollars, and fifty cents each per copy of the code.

The government has enjoyed the added revenue—surely the government will now see to it that protection is given printers who have been subjected to unfair competitive practices, which apparently will now be resumed as before until the government can find time to "consider the whole matter"

and make the code subject to the requirements of the law.—Drumheller

Mail.

Wins Science Prize

Thousand Dollar Award Goes To 32-Year-Old Doctor

The $1,000 prize of the American Association for the Advancement of Science was awarded to 32-year-old Dr. W. M. Sleath, of the Rockefeller Institute, for discovery of a new principle of disease and possibly the origin of "life".

The principle is that proteins, which have been supposed to be inert, lifeless particles, can spontaneously become at least half alive, and that they can then produce disease the same as bacteria.

He has found the link between inert matter and life, between his report declares, the lifeless atoms which chemists study and the living cells in which biologists have been seeking the origin of disease and of vitality.

He has demonstrated that certain lifeless protein crystals can become "alive," without any change that microscopes can detect, except that they act like bacteria in being able to reproduce their kind, and to transmit hereditary traits to their offspring, much like living "fathers and mothers."

Eclipse Of The Sun

Will Occur On June 8, And Will Be Visible In Peru

Astronomers the world over looked forward to the longest eclipse of the sun in 1,200 years, on June 8, but wondered how they would contrive to study the phenomenon, visible only at sea and on a tiny strip of the Peruvian coast.

The 1937 eclipse will last seven minutes and four seconds, and will not be surpassed until 2150, when an eclipse of seven minutes and 14 seconds will occur—nearly reaching the maximum of seven minutes and thirty seconds.

Blue Ivory Not Artificial

Blue ivory is not artificially colored, but comes from the tusks of extinct mammoths found embedded in the fossil soil of northern Siberia. The blue color is due to the metallic salts which have penetrated them in the course of centuries.

A Crimeless City

Canberra, Capital Of Australia, Claims To Hold Record

In Canberra, capital city of Australia, no one has ever committed a serious crime.

Australians are claiming this as a record for good behavior and surely it would take some matching in other parts of the world. Canberra is nine years old and has a population of 9,000, spread over 22 suburbs. Except for traffic and betting cases and occasionally drunkenness, the police have practically nothing to occupy their time. The authorities attribute residents' good behavior partly to the fact that Canberra, being a garden city, has no crowded slums.

Photographs have revealed many secrets about the lightning flash. They show that there is a sort of leading dart of electricity, which starts off the main flash. This "leader" flash travels at the rate of about 5,000 miles a second.

Tom—"What's he awful about?"

Bill—"Why, George was such an easy chap to borrow money from!"

Would Prove Impossible

Canada Could Not Safely Alter Age For Pensions

According to the Ottawa correspondent of the Financial Post there is a "rising tide of opinion" that old age pensions in Canada should begin earlier than 70. He adds that the fixing of 65 for the beginning of benefits under the social security legislation of the United States "is sure to have repercussions on this side."

But there is one essential difference between the pensions law in Canada and the pensions law in the United States. The United States pensions are being made contributory. Canada's old age pensions, on the other hand, are contributed 100 per cent. by the State—75 per cent. by the Dominion, 25 per cent. by the provinces.

With the old age pensions bill come into force in 1937 few people foresaw the cost. Now that Quebec has come under the scheme the bill will run to $30,000,000 annually, gradually rising. Any lowering of the age of beginning benefits would run the total up rapidly—might well bring it to $50,000,000.

The Journal is not minimizing the importance of old age pensions. They are necessary. But it often happens that things necessary are things impossible; nor is it well to forget that our federal treasury is still in the red by about $100,000,000 annually—Ottawa Journal.

Miracles Of The Future

List Includes Many Things That Seem Impossible Now

Some of the miracles promised for the future are these, listed by Fact Digest:

Transmitting of electricity by radio.

Men who are fully matured at 10 years of age.

The average person will live to be 100.

Artificial teeth as good as natural ones, roofs that never leak, knives that will not dull and rugs that won't show wear.

Creation of substances that will make chickens as big as pigs.

A two-hour work day.

There will be no visiting. People will stay at home and call on their friends by television.

Dream pills. By taking a certain pill a man will be able to select the kind of dream he wants.

Pneumatic tubes will carry complete meals to homes.

The streets will be sprayed daily with water.

Replacing cotton by an incomparable fabric made from scrap bottle-glass.

Taxis will have wings.

George Bernard Shaw says that in 3,000 years children will be able to walk as soon as they are born.

Proves Too Costly

Modern Method Of Producing Gold Does Not Pay

Lord Rutherford, in the Henry Sidwick Memorial lecture at Cambridge, spoke on "Modern Alchemy" and said it was now possible by modern methods to produce exceedingly minute quantities of gold, but only by the transmutation of an even more costly element—platinum. The amount of transformation is usually on a minute scale and only rarely is the matter produced either visible or weighable. In the case of gold, the gold is not visible.—London Times.

EDISON MEMORIAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JANUARY 17

JESUS THE WATER OF LIFE

Golden text: "Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst." John 4:14.

Lesson: John 4:1-54.

Devotional reading: Romans 8:26.

Explanations And Comments

The Meeting of Jesus and the Woman of Samaria. John 4:1-9. One day Jesus was on His way from Jerusalem to the "own country" of Galilee, and, as the record says, "must needs go through Samaria." On the circuit of Jesus' work He and His disciples went on to the village to buy food. There came a woman of Samaria to draw water, "a very frequenter type of character, a scold, a gossip, into a hopeless and disheveled way of living. She was like a waterlogged ship, not a total wreck, but incapable of movement, and needing both to be towed, and to be steered into the harbor."

Jesus asked the woman for a drink and in surprise she exclaimed, "How is it that you, a Jew, asketh water of me, of whom I am a Samaritan woman?" (for Jews had no dealings with Samaritans, the Evangelist explains.) At this point we are given permission to trade with Samaritans or the disciples ignored the law again, a figure of a Samaritan?

The Offer of Living Water. verse 10-13. Jesus' words to the woman are full of yearning tenderness—"you know what God's blessings are and I do not." He goes on to say, "I know that he who speaks to you has it in his power to give them all: you would be the seeker then, and he who gives you, he would give you the living water."

The woman must have been familiar with the figure Jesus employed, and must have known that there was hidden in the figure of the man who pretended to take them literally and said that the well was deep and he had nothing with which to draw up the water. It was he greater than their father Jacob who had dug the well and used it?

The woman behaved just as men and women now do, trying to keep the conversation on the subject of the well, and, "Sir, we know that we are after, and feel the discomfort of it, that ingenuity they exercise to snatch the conversation back, the conversation. How far then can each a word which will give them a chance to recall? They steer into the supercilious, to avoid the searching questions."

"This water quenches thirst for but a short time," solemnly Jesus told the woman, "but the water which I give satisfies forever, even desiring to be forgotten, becoming in you a well of water that springs into life eternal." Thus by a figure of speech rather than by definition does the teacher teach us that when we have entered the new life in Christ, which was our theme last week, when he has been "born anew," he finds perfect satisfaction.

War Veterans' Allowance

Number Receiving Government Grant Increasing Every Day

On Dec. 1 last 10,632 persons were receiving war veterans' allowance.

This involved an annual disbursement of $2,275,000, according to departmental returns.

The number of veterans receiving allowances increases every day, with no prospect of diminution of work for the board administering the act. As a result of the amendments last year, which modified the statutory provisions to take care of certain cases "on the borderline" about 500 claims were granted.

The war veterans' allowance is granted to ex-service men who on reaching the age of 60 years, are physically incapacitated from working. Single men are granted $20 a month, and married men $40. The men are encouraged to accept casual labor, and they may supplement their allowance to the extent of $200 a year for married men.

Great Lakes Fleet Sold

Big Deal Is Reported In Great Lakes Shipping Circles

Purchase of the Great Lakes fleet of Eastern Steamships, Limited, by Upper Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation Co., Ltd. at a reported price of $1,300,000, was announced in Toronto recently.

Negotiations have extended over several months. Last spring, 10 boats of the Eastern fleet were taken over and in the deal just completed the balance of the 20-foot fleet were purchased. Eastern operated freighters on the lakes for the past 13 years. The latest deal involved $700,000, it was understood.

First Shipment Sold Out

The police force of New South Wales, Australia, is testing silent rubber shoes for its horses in Sydney. If the shoe bear out the claim that they prevent slipping on hard, smooth surfaces and ease the strain on horses, they will be universally adopted, it is predicted. The first shipment of shoes from England has been sold out.

Including tunnels, bridges, etc., there are 34 exits from Manhattan Island.

Mining Development In The West

Rapid Expansion Of Mining Activity In Northwest Territories

The rapid expansion of mining activity which has taken place in the Northwest Territories in the past half decade is indicated in a review of the progress of prospecting and development prepared at the direction of Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of Mines and Resources. The statement, which is based on reports from the Great Bear Lake and Great Slave Lake areas, is particularly interesting in view of the freeze-up which has caused a general standstill in surface operations.

Prior to 1929 the only metal mining properties with underground developments were at Great Slave lake, namely, the lead-zinc property near Pine Point, and the Aurous Gold property on Wilson Island. Numerous small parties had been engaged in prospecting various areas in the North for a number of years but they were not successful in finding important mineral occurrences. The large scale aerial field exploration carried on by several mining companies in the Northwest Territories was responsible for the opening up of new areas. In 1929 the copper sulphides at Hunter Bay, and in the Coppermine area, followed.

Following the following year, the Echo Bay area of Great Slave lake became the scene of pitchblende and native silver discoveries, and the resultant activities spread over a wide area during the next three years.

A renewed interest was shown in the Great Slave Lake section in 1935 when gold discoveries were made on Outpost Island and at Yellowknife bay. These finds drew the attention of prospectors at Great Bear lake with the result that by the summer of 1936 most of them had been attracted to the Great Slave Lake field.

What appears to be one of the most important discoveries in the Northwest Territories in recent years is that at Gordon lake, 50 miles northeast of Yellowknife, a Great Slave lake, another gold discovery was made on the south shore of Great Slave lake about 20 miles east of the Tatton river. These finds were the result of prospecting efforts carried on in 1936 in favourable areas south and north of the eastern part of Great Slave lake. There have been about 600 claims staked in vicinity of Gordon lake and several promising veins have been found.

The gold occurs in quartz associated with galena, sphalerite, chalcopyrite, pyrite, and stibnite. Vein averages about eight feet wide and has been traced for 700 feet with visible gold showing in several places.

Thrift Being Encouraged

South Australian School Children Have Savings Bank Deposits

Over 1,000,000 savings bank deposits have been made in the past year by South Australian schoolchildren under the bank scheme for encouraging thrift in schools. Altogether there are 76,633 child depositors and the average balance is about one-half per head.

Interest is being aroused by one country in the world—Sweden. To stimulate interest in the movement the bank awards a scholarship to be competed for, also an annual scholarship for two years and valued at $100 a year.

Many of the present depositors in the general banking department acquired their existing accounts by direct transfer of those started when at school.

Thou Shalt Not Love

Then Lance was deluding himself from Stephanie's court of listeners to his imagination, and at Starr's side again. She was still rid of his dark personality that night for the instant. The whole room danced with a collection of Lances, cut out like stiff paper dolls, all in a row. He injected into her thoughts, as though he guessed something of her longings, sensed what she might have been mulling over, of the injustice of things while Stephen had talked. He drawled, smiling:

"Stephanie's so obvious. More like a nouveau riche than the last hope of a fine old name. Her and her yachts! If you want a yacht, Starr, you can have it. Mine is in the Sound now, in commission. I'd thought of making the Florida trip myself, and it's been convenient for a little ferrying this summer. . . . You can have mine, and it's twice as big as the Dale's tub. I'll take you to Hawaii, too, if you want to go—anywhere! There isn't anything Stephen Dale has that I can give you."

The thought was a knell in Starr's heart: Except love—except love!

Sapphira was turning back the bed covers when Starr at last got away from the nightmare of the party downstairs and fled to her room. Sapphira had insisted that Starr could not do without her, and the girl had yielded to the colored woman's persuasions that she be allowed to come up to the Westchester place on the train. Sapphira did not want to lose such an opportunity for displaying the gorgeness of her silver bangles, her belted white, voluminous robe and her purple head handkerchief. Nor her "foreign accent"! Sapphira's display of Kabyle may have sounded to the initiate more like hog-Latin, but she managed to make it do, and the effect was inspiring.

At the present moment she was more concerned with Starr as she laid out the girl's white silk night-robe—as a woman with Egyptian princess ancestry it would never have done for her to wear pajamas—and the tiny white marabout-trimmed mules. Starr was shivering as she came into the room. Sapphira surveyed the slim silver flask that was to be used.

"Miss Starr, for lawyer sakes, how sick you look, honey! Won't I tell you you oughtna come here on this here party? You—all oughta be home in your own baith!"

In the pale lights of the boudoir, Starr had lost all of her color. Her brittle bravado had gone with it. She looked as frail as a white, swaying flower.

The plump, motherly old colored woman was saying anxiously:

"You ought to be home an' havin' a doctor soon! after eatin' and you all oughta let me send for a doctor?"

Starr smiled wanly, but did not answer. Oh no! She had seen a doctor once—not so long ago. "You won't live six months," he had told her brutally, so very secure in his own perfect health in that room with the blue velvet curtains where foot birds sang of life outside the window. Six months. . . . And how much of that six months had slipped by already? She dared not let herself think. Why face the agony of seeing another doctor, of hearing him retort that some terrible disease:

"To me you are just like your name. A warm, near star. A dear star!"

One long tremor passed over her body as her hands clutched at the trailing vines, crushing them. That was all finished. Everything connected with Michael was finished. She was here, a guest, under the roof of the girl Michael was going to marry. The girl he loved. The girl he had loved all the time. hadn't he told her so from that first minute of their meeting?

There would be no more soft, tender words for her from her Michael-Hassan. From now on all she would know would be the sugared flattery of a man who had a "line" for every girl he met, a "hot line," but not hard-hotted.

She turned from her contemplation of the black sky and slipped back through the long open doorway to the room, sought her dressing table mechanically, as mechanically as a broom woman might pick up a broom to sweep away the cobwebs.

She loosened her hair, let its black cloud sweep about her shoulders. Nervous fingers combed and brushed the long, black mist. Suddenly her arms were flung out to the unhearing night.

"I can't!" she cried wildly. The sound of her own voice, breaking through the uncanny stillness, frightened her. "I can't! I can't go through with it!" Death that she had been contemplating for so long, with what equanimity she could, seemed terribly enough. The new step that she had been deliberately contemplating was inexplicably worse.

As she wheeled around, her arms flung high in a challenge to an inexorable Fate that she could not control, she caught sight of the glass of water and the powder which Sapphira had placed ready for her and the moment she should leave her with parties and want to seek medical repose. Her arms dropped. Dumb. An idea, half-asleep, was coming full-fledged into her being. A desperate idea was coming to life in her agonized brain.

Swiftly she darted across the room to the table and the powders, her black hair flying. One of those powders meant a night's sleep. Two or three, perhaps four, would mean peace. The peace that seemed nowhere on this earth.

Her sleeping powders. Starr slowly, understanding. It had come to that—at last. She had had to resort to sleeping powders in an attempt to rid herself of some of the terror of the dark, lonely hours when there were no parties to distract her attention from that miserable dirge that pounded incessantly like the drums of doom through her tortured mind: "Thou Shalt Not—Thou Shall Not—"

CHAPTER XIV.

Tired as she was, sleep was the farthest thing from Starr's thoughts. The sleeping powder—Well, after awhile. For the minute thoughts would come, and with them a restlessness that made her forget the weariness of limbs.

Her bedroom opened onto the upper gallery of the high verandah of the house which had a touch of the Southern spirit in its architecture. All the bedrooms along the front of the house, apparently, lay along this gallery, facing it.

She swung her windows wide and wandered out into the coolness of the September night, onto the darkness of the upper terrace.

Sweet stillness lingered like a benediction over the spacious, lovely grounds of Stephanie's home. The lower floors darkened, the radio stilled. A light flickered here and there. It was an atmosphere of ineffable peace. Peace. . . . The one thing on earth Starr Ellison craved, But how could there be peace for her when her soul was tortured?

Standing beside the verandah rail, Starr eyes sought the sky. The stars were very brilliant against their black velvet background, reminding her, except for the nip in the air that showed a more temperate climate of the nights that had hung over Algers.

Suddenly she was overwhelmed by her memories. Not memories of Egypt and the hot, humid land, but of Lethe of its nights, but of things nearer to her, a thousand times more poignant. Thoughts of a night or two ago—the Casino—Michael. Just before all the terrible things that had looked at just such a sky as this together—a sky that had held a world of romance. There had been the night before—another sky, the Mayfair—a terrace—she and Michael together had looked at the black velvet sky, at the twinkling lights of a fairy city. . . . His arms had been seeking to end her. She could hear his voice, like some great throbbing wonder voice heard from an ineffable distance:

"To me you are just like your name. A warm, near star. A dear star!"

One long tremor passed over her body as her hands clutched at the trailing vines, crushing them. That was all finished. Everything connected with Michael was finished. HER HANDS WERE ALL OUT OF SHAPE

In Grip of Rheumatism for 15 Years

Here is a letter which shows the value of persevering with Kruschen.

"For about two years I hardly went out. It was such a painful effort to walk to get around. My hands and feet were so bad I was unable to walk without a cane. I read so much about Kruschen, I decided to try it. I was three months on and since then I have been fine and never used the cane. My hands were all out of shape, but of course I could not expect to get them back at once. I had suffered for 15 years before I started on Kruschen." (Miss) A.L. Artist Was Kindly Man

Incident in Paul Peel's Life Cherished

By Daughter

In a recent interview in Toronto, Miss Marguerite Peel, daughter of the late Paul Peel, Canadian artist, when asked to recall some incident in her father's life which she cherishes particularly, told of the day on which the artist was presented with the gold medal of the Paris Academy of Arts, an enviable honor. She said: "He was all togged, when he came from the Louvre, in his very best—top hat and everything. Well, when he came home he came on like a mad dog, wearing his 'lady-washer' and she had a big basket of clothes that she was just starting to climb with up to the fifth storey—and father, top hat and all, picked up the big basket of clothes and carried it every step up all those stairs. Wasn't that old woman wild with joy? And didn't she just worship my father ever after?" The medal received by the artist from the Paris Academy that day is still one of his daughter's most prized possessions.

"Some of the magnificent specimens amongst these people," said Mr. Jennings, "could, with proper coaching and training, become athletes equal to the world's best, worthy to compete in the Olympic games."

Bridge For Students

Improves Their Minds More Than Lectures States Scientist

Sir James Jeans, the famous scientist, suggests university students might better improve their minds by playing bridge than by attending lectures. "Bridge," he said at a recent luncheon in London, "teaches you to make rapid decisions, to plan a course of action, to estimate odds. It teaches qualities such as courtesy and tact in which a man who has concentrated too much on mathematics and physics may be deficient."

For the first time since the World War Turkey's fleet is cruising the Mediterranean.

THE GOVERNMENT'S DILEMMA

There are indications of internal dissension in the Social Credit government that appear to be based on facts. The government has a right and left wing, which is nothing strange. In fact every political party has the same. Ominous threats and growls are emanating from the left wing and making some people a little apprehensive. The talk of radical action accompanied by a suggestion of armies in the field to enforce new and drastic laws may frighten some and encourage others, but will not do any good. The fact remains that the government must get money from the people for required expenditures. If wealth in liquid form is driven out it will result in dwindling revenues. That means less money available for taxes and less employment for workers. The government cannot make wealth. It must have learned that sad fact ere this. Wealth is only produced by applying labor to natural resources. We have stated that fact so often our readers must surely be impressed by it.

If provincial money is to supplant federal money by act of the legislature, a measure of disaster will be visited upon this province, the extent of which cannot be perceived at this time. We doubt, however, if that drastic action will be taken, or that it will last long, if it is tried. We cannot imagine farmers selling their products for Alberta paper money or workers accepting the same for their pay. The general public dubity as to the value of the Alberta money would discount it immediately and there would be a great volume of protest that would be difficult for the government to meet.

The government's dilemma lies in the too positive assurance of dividends given to the people. If some strings had been tied to the promises, they could have been evaded for a period of time and a general educational program undertaken with the view of ultimately trying out the scheme. In this way a period of stable government with much less criticism and general turmoil might have been created. As matters now stand, the government is in a rather unfortunate predicament—Hanna Herald.

There's always something to take the joy out of life. Only yesterday we read the following heading in a Newfoundland newspaper: "Kidney trouble made Newfoundland lady miserable."

Pat had joined the navy, and was being drilled with his shipmates on the pier. "Fall in!" came the order. Immediately Pat fell into the water. "Two deep!" came the next order. Pat (spluttering in the water): "Bad scream to ye! Why didn't ye tell me it was too deep before I fell in?"

After a foolish parade of semi-donals, it finally came out that the Hon. C. C. Ross had resigned from the Aberhart cabinet. As the resignation was handed to the Premier December 20th, why delay the announcement? It must not be overlooked that Mr. Ross was a servant of the people of Alberta. He was not working for Premier Aberhart. The people pay the bills and have a right to know when any radical changes are being made—Clareham Local Pres.

THE POLICEMAN

His life is all routine and work, He's hated more than any Turk; But still his duty he won't shirk,

The Policeman.

His heart is big, his pay is small, And he must tend to every call— From a wedding to a drunken brawl,

The Policeman.

Through bitter frost and blinding sleet,

All weathers he is on his beat,

To keep good order on the street,

The Policeman.

Through alleys, lanes and streets he'll creep,

At night time when you're sound asleep,

In search of thieves who'd make you weep,

The Policeman.

When midnight thieves are on the go, Who then with measured tread and slow,

Protects your homes—right well you know,

The Policeman.

At pretty girls when they pass by, Who is it often winks his eye, And takes his beer all on the sly,

The Policeman.

Don't blame him—it's his only joy, To smile at fair ones passing by, He's human—just like you and I,

The Policeman.

He's always foremost in the van, To do his best for every man. So help him every way you can,

The Policeman.

The latest "denial" is that Social Credit has wings.

It's just as true as truth can be— We see it every minute—

Life won't return what we put in. But just what we put it in.

WHEEL PICTURES

The motion of the ferris wheel was stopped at 1/100 second at 1.8. The exposure of the still locomotive wheel was 1/10 second at 1.6. The wheel of the barrow was taken at 1.8, exposure 1/25 second, after a long study of lights and shadows and much changing of camera position.

"WHEELS—man's first invention"—make photographic subjects of absorbing interest. There is a lot of fun in making a hobby of wheel pictures.

There are so many kinds of wheels—wagon wheels, spinning wheels, automobile wheels, locomotive wheels, water wheels, steering wheels, cog wheels and the thousand and one other sorts and sizes used in mechanics. And every one of them, when pictured in a photograph, tells some kind of story of human interest.

Wheels tell you tales of speed and power; they are witnesses to man's inventiveness and ingenuity; from the simple wheel invented by the aborigines to the giant steel wheels of an airplane may symbolize the history of man's progress; new wheels tell of life and activity; old wheels, broken and abandoned, spell obsolescence, decay and decline. What a stimulus to philosophical reflection are pictures of wheels!

Wheels to photograph may be found everywhere—in junk heaps and farmyards, in streets, in factories, in your own home. Photo by JOHN VAN GILDER.

Mr. Carter, who for some time has been engineer at the East Kootenay Power Co.'s plant at Sentinel, passed away in the Fernie hospital on Sunday morning, following an illness of several months. Remains were laid to rest at Elko on Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Carter operated a service station and tourist camp at Elko.

W. R. Reader, parks superintendent, returned to Calgary from Chicago on Wednesday, where he attended the annual meeting of the American Institute of Park Executives. Mr. Reader was elected one of the twelve members of the executive board, and will hold the position for three years. Mr. Reader has been a patron of the Bellevue and District Horticultural, Industrial and Poultry Society since its inception.

ORIGIN OF CANNIBALISM

Dr. Weston A. Price Tells of Experience During Research Work Carried on Among South Sea Islanders.

"One of the purposes of this trip was to find, if possible, native diets consisting entirely of plant foods which were competent for providing all the factors needed for physical and mental physical development without the use of any animal tissues or product."

"A special effort was accordingly made to generate deeply into the interior of two of the largest islands where the inhabitants were living quite remote from the sea, with the hope that groups of individuals would be found living solely on a vegetarian diet. Not only were no individuals or groups found even in the interior, who were not frequently receiving fish from the sea, but I was receiving that they recognized that they could not live over three months in good health without getting something from the sea."

"A native interpreter informed me that this had been one of the principal causes of bitter warfare between the tribes, the inhabitants of those islands and all of the Pacific islands, because the hill people could not exist without some sea foods to supplement their abundant and rich vegetable diet of the mountain country. He informed me also that even during the periods of bitter warfare the people from the mountain districts would come down to the sea during the night and place in each district a number of traps which only at the highest altitude. They would return the following night to obtain the sea foods that were placed in the same case to the people from the sea."

"I stated that even during warfare these messengers would not be captured or disturbed."

"This guide and many others explained to me that the cannibals had been the result of the resentment of the hill people that the low-living and other organs of their enemies from the coast provided the much needed chemicals which were requisite to supplement their plant foods. Another highly informed son of cannibals, a few who acknowledged that they had eaten "long pig" advised that it was common knowledge that the people who had lived on the sea had always been able to obtain lots of sea foods, particularly the fishermen, were especially sought for staying a famine. One native told me of having left an island where he had been working, because of a tip that came to him that his life was in danger because of his occupation."

"It was a very common experience for a man to be taken up on the sea forms, including seals, fish and spiny forms, eating these raw after scraping off the spines off with a piece of cor-

Old Cough Yields to Buckley's Mixture
Read What Mr. Gull Says

HAMILTON, Ont.—"From the time I was a small boy until the age of thirty-two, I was subject to frequent attacks of coughing day and night. Doctors told me I was suffering from chronic bronchitis—that there was no permanent remedy. One day I heard of a preparation for Buckley's Mixture. The word 'cough' sounded so familiar to me that I bought a bottle. It gave me relief. I bought two more and my cough disappeared. Since then, I have never returned."

"BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE will give instant relief from the strangling torture of bronchitis, and it acts like a fish on coughs and colds. Do you know what it is? BUCKLEY'S is sold everywhere and guaranteed."

A. C. Rowe, Social Credit Calgary alderman, has been unseated because it was proven to the satisfaction of Mr. Justice Ives that he had a contract with the city for servicing of adding machines at the time of his election.

Highway traffic between Cowley and Macleod has been at a standstill for about a week, owing to tremendous snowdrifts. Drifts are so deep and hard that government plows are unable to remove them. Man teams or horse scoops will likely be commissioned. The highway west of Cowley and through to Fernie has been kept clear. Since writing the above, however, we learn that all trails between here and Calgary or Lethbridge have been negotiated.

BELLEVUE HAPPENINGS

James Tutt was a week end visitor to Calgary.

Mr. and Mrs. L. McDonald entertained a number of friends at their home on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Hallworth are rejoicing upon the arrival of a daughter. Mother and child doing nicely.

J. H. McLean left Wednesday afternoon on a business visit to Edmonton.

Several rinks from her journeyed to Coleman Wednesday to compete in the curling bonspiel.

There is quite a lot of sickness in town. Several homes are quarantined for mumps and chicken pox.

Roads were so badly drifted on Monday that the various transports and buses were compelled to stay in town till Tuesday. The only reliable means of transport in the winter time seems to be the railway. It's the "old" reliable.

COWLEY HAPPENINGS

Mr. Schumacher and Dick Alexander won the prizes at the gentlemen's five-hundred drive on Thursday evening.

Several cases of chicken pox have been reported in the district. The disease appears to be in mild form.

The Silver-tone Seven, eighteen-piece orchestra of Calgary, who have made themselves popular over the air, were marooned in Cowley, where they spent the night on Friday last. The orchestra was due to play for a dance in Fernie on that night, but on account of the raging blizzard blocking this stretch of highway were forced to spend the night here, so they rented a hall and staged a dance, while the storm's still raged. Those who attended the dance report it as a treat to have been there and have the pleasure of dancing to their music.

Ellen Wende, around ten years of age, had the misfortune to break her arm on Thursday of last week. The accident happened when she and her younger brother, Edmund, were riding home from school, double deck on an old work horse. The horse was very gentle, but it being a cold day was anxious to get home, and was travelling at a fairly fast gait when it stumbled into a snow drift and fell, flinging the girl on the hard ground and breaking the arm above the elbow. Her full weight was borne on that member as she hit the earth. She got up by herself and walked a few hundred yards back to the school house, where the teachers administered first aid. Ellen bravely faced the situation and never complained nor shed a tear while the arm was being taken care of. She was immediately rushed to hospital at Pincher Creek, where she was a patient for a few days. The lad escaped injury, other than a shaking up.

On December 28th, 1931, a butterfly was captured at High River.

Christopher Hassett, aged 70, died Christmas Eve near Truro, Nova Scotia, after living for three years in a small attic room, mainly furnished. He left an estate of $100,000 cash. His landlady said he peddled fish for two days a week, and brought home the unsold fish for his supper.

Charlie Sartoris is no longer bare-headed. About four years ago, Charlie was terribly annoyed at the number of mosquitoes, etc., that parked on his bald cranium. For the past three years he has gone bareheaded, winter and summer, and today glories in a splendid grey-beaked whisker on the roof of his head. He used olive oil, machine oil, motor oil, castor oil, paint oil, codliver oil, and every other oil concoction, but claims that lots of soap and water and no hairdresser really did the trick.

Speaking of the growth of the liquor menace," Dr. A. J. A HEALTHY SIGN

In an Oklahoma courtroom recently, a high-salaried oil company executive sat with 11 other jurors, at $3 a day, to hear a chicken stealing case. And a court official of the city points out that such attention to a civic duty is becoming less unusual.

"A few years ago," he reveals, "men of large affairs avoided jury service, but in recent months we have had a number of prominent men on juries."

If this trend is noticeable in other cities, also, it would be interesting to learn just what is responsible. It is possible that in hectic boom days these men subordinated their duties as citizens to the pursuit of profits; and that common struggle through hard times revived their sense of responsibility to their fellow citizens.

In any event, the trend is, as an official pointed out, "a healthy sign of revived interest in government and an excellent example for the community."—Ex.

MOVE TO LIMIT PARTICIPATION IN SPANISH WAR

London.—Germany and Italy informed Great Britain and France they approved in principle the halting of movement of volunteers to take part in the Spanish civil war but at the same time raised the question of indirect intervention.

The long-delayed replies to the Anglo-French note of Dec. 23 regarding to banning volunteers indicate new negotiations are to be undertaken to limit the conflict to Spain.

Germany's answer was delivered to British and French embassies at Berlin; Italy's, was given by Count Ciano, the foreign minister, to Sir Eric Drummond, British ambassador, and French Charge d'Affaires Blondefeld at Rome.

When the replies are received at the foreign office they probably will be handed to the international non-intervention committee for examination as to whether sufficient points in common exist to make possible formulation of a workable scheme to halt flow of volunteers.

Germany laid down three conditions for incorporation into any further non-intervention efforts:

Other participating nations should adopt the same attitude;

The question of indirect participation in the civil war should also be tackled immediately;

All participating governments shall agree to unconditional, effective control of various prohibitions agreed upon, such control to be carried out upon the spot.

The reply also urged the advisability of removing from Spain all non-Spanish participants in the conflict, including "political agitators and propagandists."

It was understood in Rome that the Italian reply agrees in principle to discourage movement of volunteers to Spain but makes numerous reservations, notably in regard to the Franco-Spanish frontier.

The reply was said to include proposals for ending international tensions. At Rome, officials said "they embraced the whole field of non-intervention, including war materials and financial support as well as volunteers."

Foreign Minister Eden is believed to have told the German charge d'affaires, Dr. Woermann, of the growing seriousness of the problem of volunteers.

Eden also conferred with Prime Minister Baldwin and it was understood they discussed matters arising out of the Spanish war.

Meanwhile plans to despatch a party of Irish volunteers recruited by General O'Duffy to fight for the insurgents "flopped."

The men, number about 500, were ordered to return to their homes after waiting vainly at Waterford for a ship to transport them to Spain. They were mostly recruited in the Dublin area.

Germany's note pointed out the Fascist nations, Germany and Italy, at the start of the conflict urged prevention of departure of volunteers while Britain and France did not agree.

Have Lost Citizenship

Two Russian Scientists Barred From Country By Soviet Union

Moscow.—The premium of the central executive committee by special decree deprived Professor Vladimir N. Ipatieff and Alexei Chichibabin, scientists, of their citizenship.

The decree forbade the scientists ever to return to the Soviet Union. They were charged with "having refused to fulfill their duty to the fatherland."

The scientists were expelled from the Russian Academy of Science Dec. 30, on charges of violating the new Russian constitution by refusing to return to Russia to continue their scientific work.

Anti-Pneumonia Serum

Toronto.—Tests are still being made by Toronto physicians of an anti-pneumonia serum announced by Dr. George Anglin of Toronto Western hospital staff to the medical health officers' convention in June and which will be reported publicly in an early issue of the Canadian Medical Journal.

Suggest New Silver Dollar

Yarmouth, N.S.—Yarmouth board of trade decided to support a suggestion a new Canadian silver dollar be minted to commemorate the coronation of King George VI next May. The board will forward its recommendation to the federal government and to the Bank of Canada.

Epidemic In Britain

One Out Of Every Four Persons In London Affected By Influenza

London.—One of every four persons in Greater London has been affected by the epidemic of mild influenza gripping the capital, it was estimated as public health officials launched a determined campaign to halt further spread of the disease.

Special bulletins describing symptoms and methods to avoid contagion were broadcast at regular intervals. Thousands went to physicians and hospitals to receive anti-influenza inoculations.

The epidemic struck in every quarter. Fully 1,400 members of London's police force were reported on the sick list. Charles Laughton, British actor, was among the theatrical notables confined to bed. He has not been able to appear at the Palladium, where he was playing in "Peter Pan."

The capital's theatre and sports worlds seemed completely demoralized by the number of casualties. Several scheduled events had to be cancelled or undergo last-minute reorganization.

Sir John Martin Harvey, famous 73-year-old actor, was another caught by the epidemic. He was unable to play the role of the Prophet Samuel in Sir James Barrie's play, "The Boy Friend," in which Elizabeth Bergerin is starring. Dorothy Dix lost her voice completely and could not appear at the old Vic theatre, where she was playing the role of the queen in Hamlet.

South London appeared to be bearing the brunt of the epidemic, although its ravages were felt everywhere.

Premier's Motor License

Mackenzie King Has Double Seven On His Plate

Ottawa.—If there is any luck to the minister, "seven" Prime Minister Mackenzie King should get a double license. His automobile registration for 1937 is "7-W-7."

It has been customary for some years for the prime minister and leader of the opposition to have the same numbers on each renewal of their car registration, but changes in the system of arranging the numbers have made this difficult.

Last year and the year before, Mr. Mackenzie King had the numbers 987 with different letters each year. Former Prime Minister R. B. Bennett customarily had "BB 1," but was unable to get that distinction last year. Mr. Bennett has been absent and his car is not in operation this year.

Recruiting In Britain

Government Favors The Voluntary System As Long As Possible

Glasgow.—Prediction voluntary recruiting would continue to be sufficient for Great Britain's military needs was made here by Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for co-ordination of defence.

Addressing the city of Glasgow territorial, army and air force association he said: "We are very closely wedded to maintenance of the voluntary system."

Sir Thomas emphasized the United Kingdom is exposed to the threat of air raids due to increasing range and speed of aircraft.

Few places were left in the country, he said, that might reasonably be described as free from menace by air.

Takes Away Driving License

New York Judge Also Fines Hit-and-Run Driver

New York—Rocco Grassi, 63-year-old plasterer-contractor, found guilty of the hit-and-run killing of a woman pedestrian was under court order never to drive an automobile again during his life-time.

Judge Lester Patterson, in passing sentence, said: "We cannot condone striking a person and running away. You wouldn't do that to a dog."

In addition to the life sentence of non-driving, Grassi was fined $200.

Tax Must Be Paid

Winnipeg.—Notices have been sent out by the Manitoba government to 3,000 Dominion government employees in the province they must pay forthwith all amounts owing on Manitoba's two per cent wage tax. The employees were recently found liable for the tax, which they had protested, by the privy council.

No Snow In Nova Scotia

Halifax.—A snowless winter thus far in Nova Scotia is worrying lumber operators. Lack of snow in the chief lumbering areas has caused such a setback it is estimated the resultant cut will be only two-thirds that of a normal year.

Marketing Grain

Says Open Selling System Best Known Method Devised

Winnipeg.—Selling of grain through the present open market system offered by grain exchanges was the best known method of marketing wheat, declared W. Sanford Evans of Winnipeg in continuing his evidence before the Turgeon royal grain commission.

Mr. Evans, concluding his second day on the witness stand, said there could be no such thing as a "collapse" of the wheat market. He believed better market conditions would have prevailed had not government agencies entered the markets after the world-wide depression started in 1929.

Disapproving the general public speculation in wheat futures, Mr. Evans said he did not think, however, they did the market much harm.

Reviewing various marketing methods, Mr. Evans said possibly a degree of regulation might be advisable for the present open market method but he said all the essentials of the system should be retained and interfered with in any way.

FRANCO-TURKISH ISSUE SUBMITTED TO THE LEAGUE

London.—Coincident with difficulties in regard to the Spanish civil war, threatening clouds now rise over the Near East.

There, on the old battleground of Saracen and Crusader, French and Turks are at issue over the districts of Alexandretta and Antioch on the Taurus-Syrian frontier.

The dispute arose a few months back when France recognized the independence of Syria, over which she previously had a League of Nations mandate. Turkey claimed 80 percent of the populations of Antioch and Alexandretta districts were Turkish and should not be included in the independent Syrian republic.

Turkey submitted the issue to the league, claiming the two dependencies were entitled to self-government by virtue of the covenant by treaties of 1921 and 1923. Turkey contended that as a matter of extreme urgency, sanitary measures should be taken to ensure the safety of Turkish peoples whose lives and liberties were endangered.

Lost In Woods

Aged Trapper Has Harrowing Experience In Nova Scotia

Black Point, N.S.—Seymour Harris, 98, stumbled out of the woods back of his home nine days after he entered and three days after searching him, Royal Canadian Mounted Police had given him up for dead.

Pale and weakened by hunger, sleeplessness and cold, Harris told a vivid story of how he wandered back to the path he had taken more than a week ago and was able to follow it to his home.

Fearful of freezing to death if he allowed himself to sleep, he had wandered nine days and eight nights through the wilderness of granite and spruce, weakened by frequent dizzy and fainting spells.

Relief Grants Reduced

Toronto Not Needing Amount Received Last Year

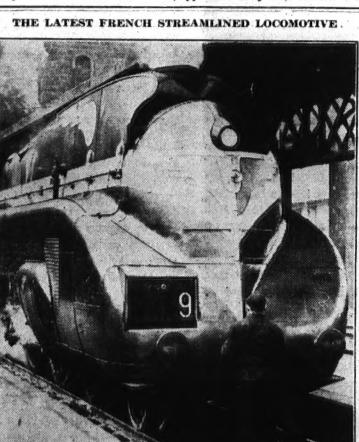

Toronto.—Government relief grants to Toronto over the next three months will be cut $630,000, it was announced at provincial government offices.

Instead of turning over to the city $2,099,615 during January, February and March as was done last year, government relief aid will run about $1,469,725, provincial relief officials said. Reduction is based on increased employment in the city, fewer people on relief and smaller relief expenditure as revealed by Toronto welfare returns to the provincial department and the Ontario government's own figures, it was said.

Ontario Premier For Coronation

Toronto.—Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario will officially represent the province at King George's coronation next May, it was reported at Queen's Park. Textile Tariffs

Downward Revision In Schedules In Effect

Ottawa.—Unless all signs fail, downward revisions in the textile schedules of the Canadian tariff will be a major development in this session of parliament. Lower duties against British woollens and artificial silks are expected and a cut in the imports of higher grade manufactured cottons from the United States.

Evidence of profits made by some textile firms in Canada submitted in Judge W. F. A. Turgeon's inquiry into the industry is believed to have caused the government to lend an ear to proponents of lower tariffs. British textile people also urge better treatment in the new trade agreement now being negotiated between Canada and the United Kingdom.

Textile manufacturers, one of the big industries in Canada and any changes in the protection it receives will be of far-reaching effect. The domestic production this year will run over $350,000,000. For the 12 months ended Oct. 31 last, Canadian imports of textiles totalled $66,000,000, compared with $84,000,000 the year before.

Most of the imports come from Great Britain and United States. British textile exports to Canada jumped from $30,000,000 in 1935 to $43,000,000 in 1936, and the United States exports from $31,000,000 to $33,000,000. Raw cotton constitutes about half of the textiles coming from the United States.

Shipment Of Arms

Spanish Steamer Leaves New York Laden With Aeroplanes

Washington.—Time and a technically thwarted United States congress in its race to stop munitions shipments to Spain.

An administration embargo against such exports streaked through both houses at the fastest pace since the emergency banking legislation of 1933.

Even faster, however, was the departure from New York of a Spanish steamer laden with aeroplanes sent to the Spanish socialists by Robert Cuse, Jersey City broker.

Crown Princess Juliana Of Netherlands Weds Prince Bernhard Lippe-Biesterfeld

The Hague.—A burgomaster made Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands and Prince Bernhard Zuid-Lippe-Biesterfeld man and wife in the traditional Dutch civil ceremony.

Cheers swept across packed streets as the prince and princess started from the royal palace in a golden carriage to be married, first civilly at the town hall and then in Great St. James church, according to the customs of the Dutch Reformed church.

Juliana was resplendent in a wedding dress that glittered under a silver robe. Bernhard, smiling happily, was a handsome figure in the full dress uniform of a captain of the Blue Hussars.

The day was cold and cloudy and a high wind whipped the flags around their standards as the procession wound through the ancient capital's narrow streets to the town hall.

Seated there before a red-covered table in the great wedding room, the burgomaster Dr. S. G. R. de Monchy, asked Bernhard:

"Do you confess your willingness to take Juliana as your legal wife and to support her wherever she goes?" "Yes," the prince replied.

When the burgomaster asked Juliana the counterpart of the same question, she answered unhesitatingly, but in a low, hushed voice, "Yes."

"Then" the burgomaster said, placing their hands together, "under Dutch law I declare you to be married and are now entitled to address you as your highnesses."

Before performing the ceremony Dr. de Monchy received the nodded approval of Queen Wilhelmina, the bride's mother, and Princess Armgard, Bernhard's mother.

They having warned the prince and princess of the difficulties and responsibilities of marriage, he pronounced them man and wife.

For the benefit of the thousands of spectators gathered in the streets of Europe's biggest little nation, the streets of the Hague were decked with the tall, plump bridge and the scion of German royalty.

Many waited through the night for a place along the route of the wedding procession. A telegram from Chancellor Hitler of Germany to Queen Wilhelmina wished the crown princess happiness in marriage.

FRENCH REPORT SAYS GERMANS INVADE MOROCCO

Paris.—The French Moroccan administration in a report has informed the French government Germany is conducting a large-scale military and commercial invasion of Spanish Morocco, a high authority said.

The report, this authority asserted, said Germany marines had landed at the Spanish-Moroccan port of Ceuta and preparations were being speeded for the arrival of "large bodies" of German troops.

It continued, he said, that German engineers were supervising the construction of heavy fortifications in Ceuta which will make it a serious rival to Gibraltar and a part of many commercial concessions were granted to Germans, notably with regard to the Mellila iron.

A Spanish insurgent army officer of German extraction, whose name was given as Col. Beitziger, was asserted to be in command of the zone and to be consulting the German consul in Tetuan on every move, the authority said.

The report pointed out, he asserted, Germany had broken three international treaties by the alleged action.

Under the treaty of Versailles, Germany renounced any and all claims in Morocco.

Spain, under the Franco-Spanish treaty, was forbidden expressly to allow foreign troops to set foot in Spanish Morocco.

The Franco-British treaty of 1904, concluded in by Spain, forbade the construction of fortifications for the Franco-British alliance on a larger scale than those which had long existed.
